My first memory of being at 354 Green Street in Syracuse was when I was in the first or second grade. It was a large house with several floors, on a lot that sloped down to the rear. My eyes widened as I took in the varnished wood interior trim, the plush rugs, drapes, and furniture, and the musical instruments in the entrance parlor. These people were rich, I thought. All attention was centered on a bedroom where I peeked in and could see an elderly gentleman lying on a bed. My mother said to me that her father had "cramps in his belly."

Some years later I was dispatched to walk the mile to Grandma's house and assist her with chores. Syracuse was divided into ethnic neighborhoods then and I skirted the Polish neighborhood because they were reputed to beat up passersby. I knew that Italians lived down the hill from Grandma's and that my father's family lived a half mile to the north in an Irish enclave within a larger German neighborhood. Mary Lynn Raiti wrote that the area around 354 Green Street was known as Frenchmen's Hill, another ethnic neighborhood. I was asked to pick the pie cherries from a tree in the yard. I picked every cherry on the tree but ate so many that the total yield amounted to only two quarts, not enough for a pie. Grandma was so disappointed that I really felt ashamed of being such a glutton.

La Famille Chabrier dit VADEBONCOEUR

As of: 12/24/2014

I remember asking my mother to tell me about her family and I wrote it down in pencil on two sheets of paper. The girls had all been named after famous queens of history. My mother was named Marie Antoinette. Her father Meinrad had been an expert tailor who made suits that flattered men with deformed and crippled bodies. He had a first wife and two boys before marrying Grandma. I put the sheets of paper away and didn't look at them for fifty years or so. I worked on the McDonald genealogy during that time and when I chanced upon the sheets of paper again I decided it was time to do the Zimmerman genealogy.

I wrote to several cousins to get their input and Mary Lynn Raiti, a fountain of family knowledge, who had lived in the house as a child, replied that her mother, Aunt Helyn, had told her that Grandma Delia had been born in the house. Delia acted as a receptionist for an older brother that Aunt Helyn called "Uncle Doctor," whose office was in the lower level of the house.

The 1870 US Census report showed the father as Onencine Vadbancon, born in 1826 in Canada, a carpenter. The mother was named Angele, born in 1827, and from my mother, we know her as Grandma Arseneau. The children were Danna, 1854, at school; Ferdinand, 1856, at school; Eugene, 1860, at school; Edward, 1862, at school; Philip, 1867, at home; and Delia, one year old and the first of the family to be born in the USA. In the 1880 Census the father was listed as John Vadeboncoeur. Danna was not listed (probably married). Ferdinand, then 23 was a doctor. Eugene was not listed. Edward was a clerk in shop. Philip, 12, was at school. Delia, 10, was at school. A new arrival David, 7, was at school. A boarder in the house, Louis Arseneau, probably a brother of Angele, was also a carpenter. Delia's next older brother was 12 so the family must have moved here and built the house around 1869.

(Spelling is chaotic. I thought I had written Delia's father's name as Orrizeme Vadeboncoeur on my notes, but then decided I had actually written Onizeme. The 1880 census listed him as "John" and the 1870 Census showed him as Onencine Vadbancon! So I don't really know how to spell his name.)

From Mary Lynn Raiti:

"Grandma Z used to wear a gold pendant on a piece of black ribbon. It was a carved disc with the initials AFV. It was left to my mom and she gave it to me when I was 16. The initials stood for Antoine Ferdinand Vadeboncoeur (Uncle Doctor). It is my most treasured piece of jewelry. My mom told me Uncle Doctor wore it on his fob and she thought it was carved from a twenty dollar goldpiece."

From the 1880 US Census, Grandpa Meinrad Z turned out to have been born in the corner house where Isabella Street meets Lodi Street in Syracuse, about a mile west of 354 Green Street. From the 1870 Census, Meinrad's father Meinrad, a shoemaker, born in 1824 and his mother Caroline (Karlina) 1827, were both born in Baden, Germany. All of the children were born in the USA. John, 1853, was a silver plater. Clarry, 1855 was a tailoress. Mary, 1856 was at home. Charles, 1857 was a silver plater. George, 1863, Frank, 1864, Meinrad, 1866 and Joseph, 1868 were at home. In the 1880 Census Meinrad's father was missing, possibly having passed away. John had become a piano tuner. Clarry and Mary were missing and probably were married. Charles was a milk pedler. George was a tailor. Frank worked in a piano shop. Meinrad, then 14 had no work entry and Joseph was at school. The Syracuse Directories in 1889-90 listed Meinrad as a tailor, boarding at 210 Walnut, which is closer to Green Street, when he would have been 23. According to Mary Lynn, Meinrad Z met Delia V when he became a patient of "Uncle Doctor."

Aunt Caroline had moved out of 354 Green Street before 1930. She married an accountant and had no children. Esther and my mother also had married. John was running a downtown restaurant called "Zimmerman's." In the 1930 Census Frank was listed as a serviceman. Jane was a nurse. Margaret was an unemployed comptometer operator. Helyn was a billing clerk. Charles was 18 with no occupation. He contracted polio and needed crutches to move around. He fixed radios, tried leasing a highway gas station and diner, and later had a herd of ponies that he took to fairs to provide pony rides for children.

I had never given any thought to family pride until Aunt Jane organized a Christmas hay ride for cousins and aunts. Two horses pulled us slowly through the snowy streets as we sang (after the Irish song, "Harrigan, That's Me."),

Z-I-double MER-M-A-N spells ZIMMERMAN
Proud of all the German blood that's in me
Divil' a man can say a word agin' me
